ATM Access a Factor in National Payroll Card Award

After rolling out JP Morgan Chase's payroll card program in 2004, Randstad, the third largest staffing organization in the world, was named as one of  JPMorganChase the top three finalists for the Best Payroll Card Program at the 2007 Prepaid Card Awards. In search of a secure payroll program focused on best servicing their employees, Randstad chose Chase's program, which offers widespread ATM access via the Allpoint Network.

Having researched and assessed several different payroll card vendors, Randstad chose Chase based on several criteria including minimal card-holder usage fees as well as convenient access for employees at ATMs.

"With ATM fees on the rise and payroll card-holders spending up to $164 per year in card usage fees, it is important for card-issuers to offer their clients a program that focuses on minimizing fees," said Ben Psillas, President of Allpoint Network. "Offering employees surcharge-free access to 32,000 ATMs provides added convenience and cost savings for the employee, while it also increases the adoption and usage of payroll cards."
